Town counsel fires back at Wiberg complaint

by Jeff Nazzaro

In what has come down to a legal tête à tête, Wilmington town counsel has responded to a complaint filed against the town by library employee Dorothy Wiberg on September 7 alleging age and gender discrimination by seeking a dismissal of the charges by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD). Attorney Sven Wiberg, Dorothy's lawyer, then rebutted the town's response, stating that, "Mrs. Wiberg is entitled to the relief she seeks."

For now, the case "hasn't even been assigned an investigator," according to Jane Brayton, Executive Assistant to the Commissioners of the MCAD.

The complaint arose when part-time library clerk Wiberg, 59, did not receive the full-time circulation librarian position she applied for. Laura Hodgson, 35, was hired for the position.

In a statement signed by Patrick M. Hamilton of the law firm Morrison, Mahoney and Miller and Town Counsel Alan Altman dated October 22, the Town of Wilmington "requests that the [Mass. Counsel Against Discrimination] dismiss Ms. Wiberg's complaint as not evidencing probable cause of unlawful discrimination based on sex or age."

But, Sven Wiberg asserts both complaints are valid and that Wilmington counsel, in addition to "procedural defects" and outright falsehoods, neglected to include specific references in its rebuttal of Dorothy Wiberg's grievance.

Wiberg's complaint is directed at Town Manager Michael Cair, Library Director Philip Meriam, Reference Librarian David Rush, and the Town of Wilmington, according to the MCAD document relevant to the case. Sven Wiberg maintains that in having Harrington and Altman respond for the Town of Wilmington, the respondents have failed to comply with proper procedure regarding response.

In addition, Sven Wiberg alleges that paragraphs 7 and 8, in which the town states Meriam "...made it clear to Wiberg that she had no supervisory authority" and "Ms. Wiberg did not become acting head of circulation, nor did she fill in for Ms. White, performing all of her duties" are "plainly untrue."

The crux of the complaint and the subsequent town response lie in the allegations of gender and age discrimination.

The town, in its' statement, refutes Wiberg's charge of gender bias, stating "...the position was offered to and filled by another member of the same 'protected group,' i.e., another woman."

Sven Wiberg calls this a "faulty legal argument," saying the Town of Wilmington's "illegal actions in the instant case must not be excused on the basis of one allegedly nondiscriminatory act," and that the "Respondents' conception of the [gender discrimination] law is incorrect."

Relevant to age discrimination, the town reiterates that "the interviews of applicants were conducted by Mr. Meriam and Mr. Rush, who are sixty-four and sixty-eight, respectively," and continues, stating "In particular, they had no reason to consider or suggest that age would be a disadvantage in filling the vacant position."

Disclaiming any biases in their interviewing process, the town asserts that the best candidate was hired for the full-time library position.

"The Town categorically denies each and every other allegation made by Ms. Wiberg, claiming that she was the victim of age discrimination. Rather," the response continues, "the position in question was given to another applicant, following a thorough and fair selection process, based on her superior qualifications for the job."

Sven Wiberg counters that these "allegations border on the absurd" and that "Mrs. Wiberg was, and is, far and away superior to the person hired by [the Town of Wilmington] for the position."

International Paper put on hold

by Jeff Nazzaro

It appears that International Paper will have to wait at least another three months before moving into the Sweetheart Plastics facility on Main Street.

The Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority (MBTA) Board of Directors last week voted against granting Sweetheart Plastics a permanent easement for the railroad tracks at the intersection of Routes 38 and 129, according to Representative James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington-Tewksbury).

International Paper is seeking the purchase of Sweetheart's Wilmington facility contingent on the plastics corporation obtaining a permanent easement. The company, which now employs approximately 15 people in an automated warehouse at its Main Street facility, has been operating under a temporary easement negotiated with the MBTA.

The MBTA, which also voted against signing the easement just over a month ago because of questions of traffic problems raised by Miceli, this time cited the need for an environmental impact study in voting down the agreement.

"Nothing will be approved until after that [environmental impact study]," Miceli said, adding "I think this gives them adequate time to put a traffic program in place."

Miceli stated he is also asking the Wilmington Department of Public Works to do a study relative to the traffic flow in the area of 129 and 38.

Elevator headed to Deming Way

by Jeff Nazzaro

If all goes well in the State Legislature, the residents of Deming Way could be getting an elevator for a newer, two-story section of the elderly housing project.

Rep. James Miceli last week tacked a $200,000 line item earmarked for the purchase of the elevator onto the Housing Bond Issue in the House.

The Senate must now add and approve an identical line-item allotment before sending the measure on to Governor Weld. Weld would then have the power to veto any specific line-item, including the Deming Way elevator funding provision.

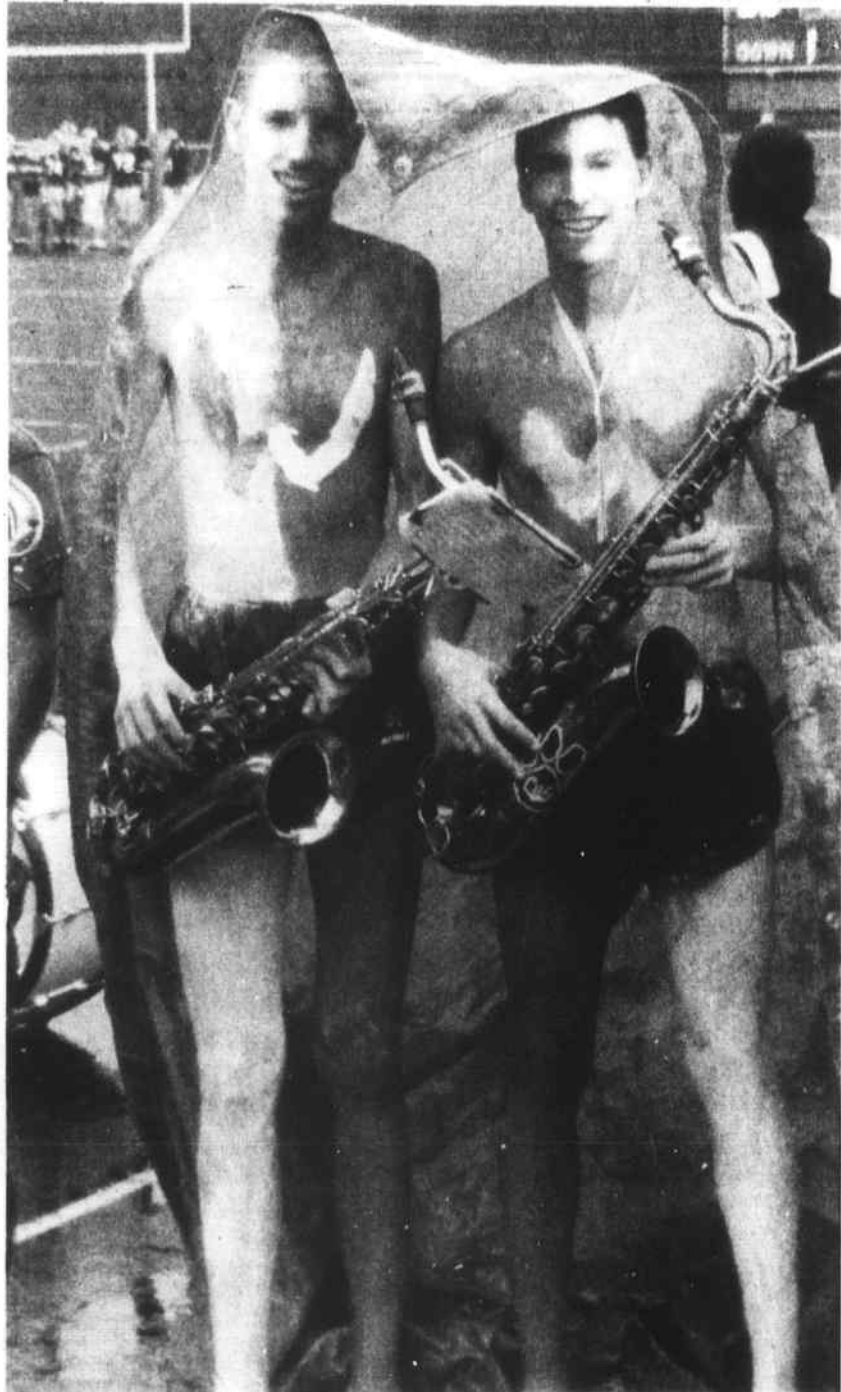

The funds would likely be added to the Senate budget by Wilmington Senator Robert C. Buell. However, if an amendment stated exactly as that added by Miceli to the House version is not part of the Senate package, then that, and any other mismatched items, would go to a conference committee. This committee would be charged with configuring a compromise package, said Miceli, who hopes his elevator funding amendment will not take that route.

This would be "the frosting on the cake" for the Deming Way housing project, according to Miceli, who early last month helped the elderly community obtain funds for a dumb-waiter or stair chair-lift.

Miceli invited and met with Secretary Mary Pedula of the Executive Office of Community Development (EOCD) along with Reps. Robert Krekorian and Maryanne Brenton at Deming Way in early October.

There, Pedula agreed to foot the bill for a much-needed roof repair in the project, thus freeing funds for purchase of the Wilmington Housing Authority dumb-waiter or chair lift.

Just plain NUTS!

This is no half-time show! Wilmington High School Band members dressed for Halloween at the game Saturday with Andover. Pat Rufo and Greg Young did it the other way, with body paint and shorts. It was very cold, all day. They didn't even have a half-time show, but these two stayed in (or out) costume all through the show.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS
Certified Public Accountant

END OF THE YEAR CHECKUP

Next April is too late to do anything about your 1993 taxes other than pay them. Now's the time to look at income and expenses, gains and losses, and see how they fit together.

If you've made gains on investments, check your portfolio. If there are any losses on paper that you don't expect to see turn around, take them in 1993 to wipe out taxes on the gain. Do you have enough investment income to write off investment expenses?

If you've set aside more money in your company's flexible spending account than you've spent, use it before it is forfeited at the end of the year. Buy glasses or go to the doctor now instead of later.

Since the new tax rates are retroactive to January, it's not important whether you take income and expenses this year or next - unless you're getting Social Security benefits that'll be taxed higher next year.

Are your estimated taxes up to date? You can be penalized for any shortfall unless it is caused solely by the new rates. The rate increase shortfall is payable over the next three April fifteenths interest free. Best bet: have taxes withheld from a paycheck; they are treated as paid at an even rate.

Let our advisors help you trim the tax bite. Talk to us at

North Intermediate Advisory Council holds meeting

The newly elected School Advisory Council of the North Intermediate School held its first meeting October 12. The School Advisory Council was established in accordance with guidelines in the recently enacted Massachusetts Education Reform Act.

The School Advisory Council will address the following tasks:

Adopt educational goals for the school; identify educational needs of the students; review the annual school budget and formulate a school improvement plan.

At its first meeting members of the Council began working on their mission statement and agenda for the year. The Committee discussed the importance of increasing the involvement of all parents in the school. The Committee therefore encourages the input of all parents. All meetings are open to the public. The next two meetings are scheduled for Wednesday Nov. 3, at 6:15 p.m. and Thurs., Nov. 18, at 6:45. Both meetings will be held in the North Intermediate School Library.

Parent members of the Council are Donald Cassidy, Carlyle Flash, Carol Neville and Paula Smith Moran; teacher members are Suzanne Gagnon, Joseph Kleponis and Anne O'Reilly; community members are Juanita Blowers and Peter Bromley. The co-chairs of the Council are School Principal Michael Tikonoff and Paula Smith Moran.

Nature's work

Isn't nature simply grand?
When she takes her brush in hand;
And gives the trees that beautiful hue
For us to enjoy; me and you.
As in the fall, we see a change,
Of colors in a glorious range
Of orange, yellow, green and brown,
It really pretties up our town.
So, we shall wait, and soon we'll see,
What she has in store for you and me.

Project Business at West Intermediate

One of the eighth grade mathematics classes is participating in Project Business, a Junior Achievement program. Junior Achievement is a non-profit organization founded by Horace Moses in 1919.

Project Business at the West is a cooperative effort among Junior Achievement, ODI, Inc. of Burlington and the West Intermediate School. Mr. Val Foti and Ms. Robin Sweet are the consultants from ODI, Inc. who will speak to the students about how businesses work, career opportunities, personal finances and investments. ODI, Inc. is funding the program.

North Intermediate science trip

The North Intermediate School eighth graders recently went on a science at sea adventure field trip. This trip combined the work of inventor "Doc Edgerton" of M.I.T. fame and a marine science harbor vessel honoring his namesake.

This trip was an educational adventure aboard the harbor boat "Doc Edgerton" at New England Aquarium Wharf. While on board students were attending mini courses on marine science. The students had lessons in navigation chart reading, Plankton identification from a tow net, study of pollution variables and marine life as found within a lobster trap haul.

After the boat ride, students traveled to the Mass. Institute of Technology Museum to see "Doc Edgerton's" lifetime work with strobe light photography. He is often called the "father of stopping time," because of his famous photographs of bullets shown "frozen" still in the air after traveling through an apple. Students also took part in a study of static electricity display, hologram and a room to explore geometric math in three dimensional view.

Many thanks to 20 parents who chaperoned, and teachers who assisted Mr. Alan Chasse, science teacher, who organized and implemented this trip.

Town Pulse & Opinion

Portrait of a first grade teacher

by Rick Barry

She arrives at 7 a.m. because the school doesn't open any earlier. There's frost on her car window, her tote bag hangs laboriously from her arm filled with children's papers as well as supplies and materials she bought at Paparama or the J.L. Hammett Store for this month's bulletin board. She is now ready to begin her work day when school starts at 8:30 a.m.

The children arrive for class this day, some with bright shining faces eager to share with their teacher something that happened last night. One child arrives donning an old coat that was his brothers (his dad lost his job last year) and the family is trying to make it through the hard times-an extra pat on the head for him because he needs it.

Still another youngster arrives with circles under her eyes because mom and dad had another argument and she didn't get to sleep before midnight. And where's the 28th and 29th students? They're at the nurse's office with a bloody nose and broken glasses from a fight on the bus.

So begins day 35 of a first grade teacher's job. The pledge of allegiance, a moment of silence, the lunch count and a song to start the day.

The room is brightly colored with fascinating decorations of your favorite cartoon characters holding the long vowels, short vowels and other letters of the alphabet, all bought or made by hand.

A lesson in phonics, connected to a language activity, a sharing book each child has been working on, each with a fancy sticker (worth more than gold to a first grader) attached to each book. The spelling words are on the board, a lesson, and then a story from their new reading book.

There are no reading groups, as the entire class receives the same instruction. No longer do children tell their parents there are in the low reading group with other "dumb" kids. Children are in cooperative learning models, with learning disabled children clustered in inclusionary classrooms where the special education teacher team teaches in the room with the head teacher. Contrary to some popular beliefs, Wilmington is on the cutting edge in regard to the newest techniques in education and in teacher training.

The teacher then moves her reading story to a science experiment which shows how bacteria is all around us, and the children can observe it growing in a culture prepared from a gelatin and bullion solution mixed and prepared at the teacher's home the week before. The children learn about how bacteria is spread, where it is found and how to best avoid coming in contact with it. The teacher attended a week-long workshop in August for science and mathematics.

Her first break from the children comes at 12:00 when she escorts them to the cafeteria, pausing only to reach in her pocketbook for lunch money for the child who forgot his.

Between 8:30 and 12:00 she has conducted lessons in phonics, spelling, reading, science and math, fixed a broken watch band, comforted six frustrated children, taken four temperatures (the hand on the forehead method), corrected and put stickers on 58 papers, taken 29 students to the bathroom (try doing just that, some day) fixed a hair clip, found a lost pencil, listened to five sick pet stories, had recess duty, blew 10 noses and fixed three broken zippers on coats.

So what does she do for lunch? She barely eats her fresh garden salad when she pulls out the penmanship papers and starts to correct them in the remaining 12 minutes she has left of her 30 minute lunch break.

As she leads her children from the cafeteria, a smile breaks out on her face because little Katie tells her about a "christmasing" (christening) they had for her new baby brother.

After a reminder to "tie that sneaker before you trip on it," it's back to the classroom for a health lesson or another writing story, a "big book" story read with the inflection of Orson Wells that has her children "clutching her left and right knees." Teachers all wish they could do that, but with 29 children, there's just not enough knees to go around.

When 2:15 comes around, there's a sort of panic as children suddenly realize that the comfortable, loving and caring place they have been in for the past few hours is ending.

For most of them, they get excited because they know there's only one place better than a first grade classroom, and that is home!

"You know, in my 30 years of teaching in Wilmington, there hasn't been one day that's gone by where some child hasn't made me laugh or smile," the teacher admits. "I go home and worry, did I hurt anyone's feelings today, did I cut that child short, did everyone get a turn? I worry about these things."

Today she leaves at 2:35 because she had a doctor's appointment. One day last week she left at 2:45 to attend a workshop on "divergent thinking." Most other days, she's there until 4:30 or 5 p.m.

Driving home, she worries that her plan book may not be at least one week ahead, but realizes she will have a planning period tomorrow, unlike this day when her children do not receive art instruction because the school does not have a fulltime position in art.

She pulls into her driveway after her appointment and picking up her own children at day care. With her tote bag in hand, she picks up the newspaper from the front steps.

By 8 p.m. papers are corrected, (with an encouraging comment on each), her children are put to sleep, and finally she has a few minutes to relax and read the paper.

The headlines say something about Clinton, Somalia, Forest Fires, the Bruins in another tie. She thumbs through the paper and another headline catches her eye. "Wilmington teachers bite the hand that feeds them." For the first time since she started teaching, she sees her name in print. She finishes the article, smiles and falls asleep in her recliner with just a glint of a tear in the corner of her eye.

Town Crier Sports newsnote:

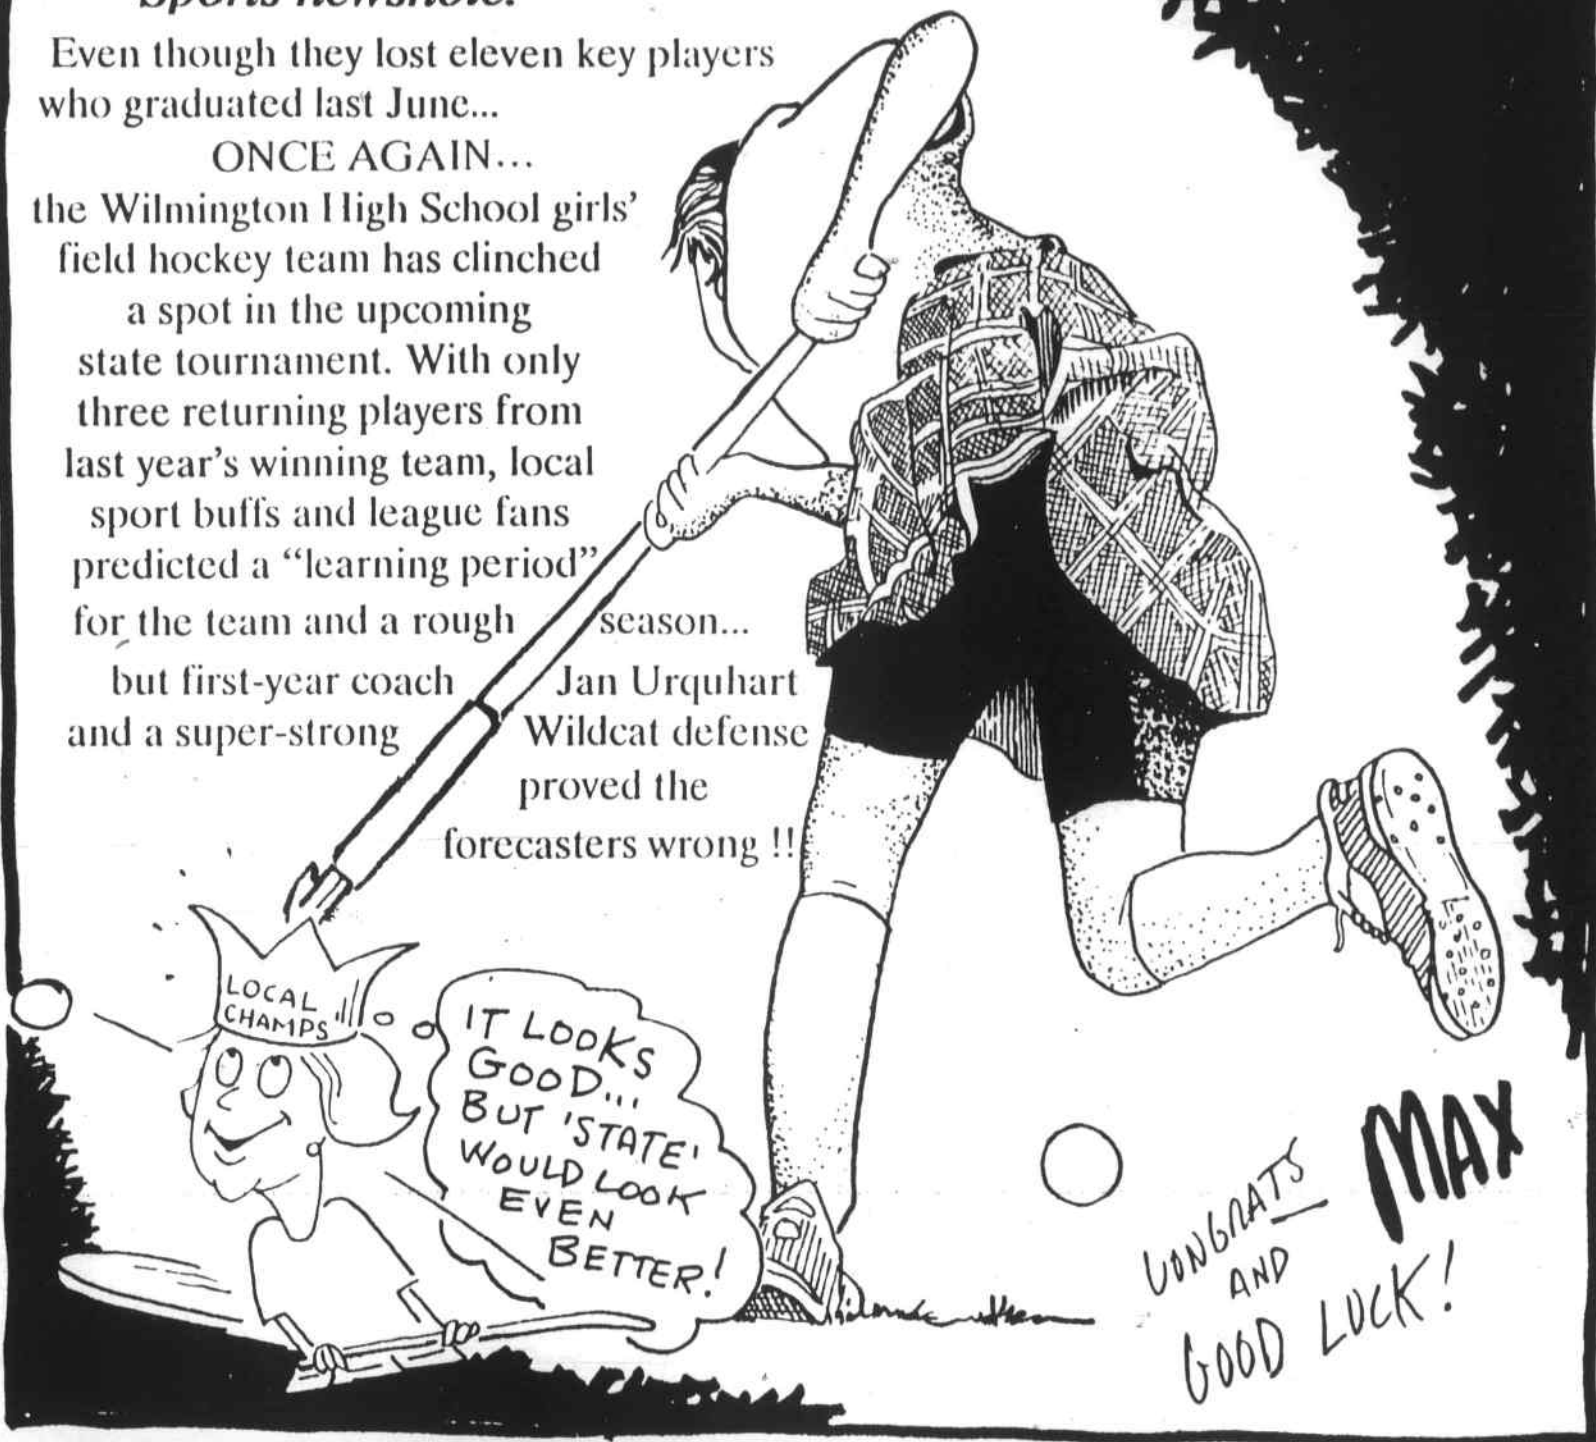

Even though they lost eleven key players who graduated last June...

ONCE AGAIN...

the Wilmington High School girls' field hockey team has clinched a spot in the upcoming state tournament. With only three returning players from last year's winning team, local sport buffs and league fans predicted a "learning period" for the team and a rough season...

but first-year coach Jan Urquhart and a super-strong Wildcat defense proved the forecasters wrong!!

25 years ago

The November 7, 1968 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

for the first time in over 20 years licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages to be consumed on the premises were voted in by the people of Wilmington.

There were 6948 registered voters and 6219 votes were cast - 90 percent. The town favored Humphrey and Muskie, and as expected Rep. Fred Cain received the heaviest vote.

The Jaycees were accepting applications for the Battle of the Band and those interested were asked to call Jim Melzar or Joe Beaton.

A large portion of low-land was filled with material from the Mystic River excavations for Interstate Route 93; thus extended Wildwood

The ban on booze in Wilmington is over

Cemetery by several acres. The extension was pictured with Superintendent Francis Downs in the background "surveying the situation."

According to Nosey Nancy, Mike Kelley was among those receiving second year awards at the Middlesex County Achievement Awards Program held November 1.

Also according to Nancy, Big Joe LaCreta of Sub Shop was making the wrestling circuit and would be in Boston Garden Saturday to oppose Big Chuck Adcox.

An ad proclaimed that those living in Wilmington could have the Town Crier delivered by mail to Dec. 31 for 65 cents; out-of-towners would have to pay 80 cents.

Smithcraft, advertising for help offered free master medical, paid vacation, free pension plan, 9 1/2 paid holidays and free health and accident insurance; one could also expect to collect a weekly paycheck. Lucci's Super Market offered grapefruit, four for 39 cents; Chase and Sanborn Coffee, 64 cents a pound and Cain's potato chips, two 12 oz packages for 98 cents.

While at Elia's Maine potatoes were selling for 39 cents a 10 pound bag; N.Y. sirloin steak, 99 cents a pound and haddock fillets, 79 cents a pound.

Troop 41 to celebrate 25th

The November 9, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Friends of Troop 41, sponsored by the First Baptist Church were planning a celebration for the 25th anniversary of the troop.

Since the junior high school did not have a PTA, parents were forming a discussion group which would meet monthly and provide a forum to discuss concerns regarding youngsters of junior high age.

The previously undefeated Lowell High School freshmen was beaten by Tewksbury freshmen.

point of view

It's a Catch .22 system - and it stinks!

by Bill Conlon

A Tewksbury cop was grumbling on Tuesday night about a gun that is not yet proven to be a gun, and the procedure that has to be followed to prove that it is. Common sense? Never heard of it.

The complaint, though relatively minor, highlights some of the ways the legal system works against the police. The police are the ones who are handcuffed, more often than suspects.

Inspector Paul Ringwood, who serves as the "armorer" for the department and handles their police marksmanship program, has to take a .22 caliber rifle to Boston this week to have it tested to see if it really is a gun.

It's obviously a .22 rifle, made by Marlin, bolt-action and in very good condition. Ringwood has handled hundreds just like it.

The rifle was confiscated during an arrest last week, in which two men were nabbed in an allegedly stolen vehicle. The rifle was found, fully loaded, during a search of the vehicle, and neither occupant of the truck possessed a Firearms ID. According to the Bartley-Fox law in Massachusetts, both will go to jail for one year, with no probation or parole. (Yeah, right.)

But before the rifle is admissible in court, it must be proven that it is, in fact, a real gun.

Deputy Police Chief Walter Jamieson said the rifle must be taken to the Department of Public Safety's lab at 1010 Commonwealth Avenue in Boston, for specialists to prove that the gun is capable of firing a projectile, and meets all the state laws defining a firearm. Otherwise, it is inadmissible as evidence in court. Ridiculous.

Ringwood grumbled that he could take the rifle to the town's shooting range and put a bullet into a paper target on his own, at a cost of less than five cents, to prove the point. But Paul Ringwood, firearms instructor and Vietnam veteran, is unqualified to perform such delicate research. It takes a highly-paid professional in a white lab coat to do what any kid out squirrel hunting could do. Squeeze one off and see if it shoots. Common sense.

Unless the judge allows the rifle to be fired inside the courtroom, the rifle is not a proven firearm, according to Deputy Jamieson. The DPS certification will be admissible in Massachusetts courts, he said, but nothing else. Why can't Ringwood simply testify that it is a gun? If his testimony is worthless, he should be insulted.

If a police weapons specialist can't determine that a simple .22 rifle is really a gun, there's something wrong with the system. No wonder the police can't rid the streets of violent criminals.

Intervention is the cure. Dr. Leavitt examines a patient's foot to determine what is the cause of the pain and then eliminates the pain.

Wilmington native Ken Leavitt has been practicing medicine for 10 years in his home town. When many others who become doctors rush off to the big cities to seek the big bucks, Dr. Leavitt has established himself here, at home.

His specialty is podiatry, problems of the foot. Ingrown toenails and heel pain are common problems he treats but his real area of interest is in surgery. Dr. Leavitt has operating privileges at Winchester Hospital and New England Memorial Hospital.

He prides himself on being the only podiatrist with an independent office in Wilmington or Tewksbury. He is also proud of being Board Certified. Not every doctor is. It's his work in quality assurance that is passion. Providing relief from pain, correcting problems and doing it right the first time. He isn't happy with telling a patient "Sorry, that's all we can do." High quality is achieved by continuing education, attending conferences and reading all the publications available on podiatry. Dr. Leavitt does just that.

A benefit of the quality assurance is cost effectiveness. Having a problem fixed right the first time is also cheaper than going back over and over again. Not that every problem can be done that way but when it can, the doctor should know how to do it.

Should you feel the need to see a doctor about a foot problem, call Dr. Leavitt for a convenient appointment right here in town at (508) 658-9774

Freedom for the slaves of Massachusetts

by Capt. Larz Neilson

In 1783 the Great and General Court of Massachusetts voted that there be no slavery in the Commonwealth. That vote was an expression of popular opinion. More than a few Massachusetts towns had already so voted. Wilmington was one of the first, if not the first, on March 3, 1777.

The Freedom of the United States had been declared in Philadelphia, on July 4, 1776. The first day of Wilmington's governmental new year, after that, was on March 3, 1777. Freedom was granted, that day, to the slaves of Wilmington. It is likely there were other towns which did the same thing.

There were a total of 10 black slaves in Wilmington in 1755. Samuel Dummer, brother of the Governor, had brought six from Jamaica in 1723-24. He chose to live in the Land of Nod.

In the terms of a later day Dummer was a Tory. He came to Massachusetts because his brother had been appointed governor. He expected to get an appointment, and he did. He was soon the Sheriff of Middlesex County.

Town officials in those days were elected by the local townspeople. Above that office was for the minions of the Royal government.

Wilmington became a town in 1730 by a combination of the Land of Nod and the Land of Goshen. Either of these names could have been suitable for the new town.

But Sheriff Dummer told the townspeople that the name was to be Wilmington. That was the name of an important person in the British Parliament.

The same story can be told of the Town of Tewksbury, in 1734. The area was known as Wamesit, the home of a local tribe of Indians.

The Rev. Edward Pride, Baptist minister of Tewksbury told his fellow townsmen about it, in 1888. "There is no evidence that this town was named for Tewkesbury, England."

The Rev. Mr. Pride did not say anything about Samuel Dummer. But, Samuel Dummer knew that one of the titles of George II, King of England, was "Duke of Tewkesbury." And Dummer made certain that he and his brother remained in the good graces of the Royal Government.

On March 3, 1777 there was no warfare in Massachusetts. There were no British soldiers, no Royal Governor, no General Gage. For that first day of a governmental year the Commonwealth was free of British rule.

A few days ago a story in some of the local daily newspapers told of a person who was demanding a different status, for the honor of the Minutemen in Massachusetts. He felt that state money should not be spent to honor them. There had been, he noted, no black Minutemen.

That man should be told of the events off the American Revolution which brought freedom to the blacks, as well as the white people of Massachusetts. If he does not wish to be told, possibly someone could present him a British flag.

Slaves were brought to Boston, but not necessarily in ships manned by American seamen. The contrary seems to be the case. Some will remember that, in 1704, the Great and General Court proposed a tax on shipmasters who brought black slaves to Boston.

The then Royal Governor, Governor Belcher, was instructed from London to veto any such legislation. There was to be no interference with such a trade.

Colonial soldiers, raised in the various towns were called The Trained Band. There were too few black people to be a part of such a military force. Royal officials, too, made things difficult for local whites who felt that the black people might be other than slaves.

In 1755 the black population in Wilmington constituted about one and a half percent of the total population.

When the Revolution began the provincial government told the towns to form companies of men who would be prepared to march on short notice. Such was the beginning of the Minutemen. Free black men were not present because there were not enough men.

But when the fighting started, black soldiers did their part.

Capt. John Hamden of Wilmington and the company he commanded had been sent to protect Harvard College; as a consequence they did not get to Bunker Hill in time to fight on Bunker Hill Day.

To a black man of Wilmington, named Titus Cober (Colburn) belongs the honor of having represented Wilmington in the Battle of Bunker Hill. He fought at Bunker Hill along with two black men from Andover. The story was told in a book by Thomas J. Fleming.

There was another black soldier, who shot and killed Major Pitcairn, in the battle at Bunker Hill. He is nameless because this writer at the moment cannot recall it.

Major Pitcairn, on horseback, was the British officer who commanded the van at Lexington. When the Redcoats came in sight of the Colonials, Minutemen and others on Lexington Green, Pitcairn drew his sword and ordered:

"Disperse, ye Rebels!" In the Revolutionary War it was at Lexington that the disputes became war. It was Pitcairn who was in command of the first British who fired.

The black soldier who shot and killed Pitcairn, at the Battle of Bunker Hill was the man who answered that order, given by the Major at Lexington.

Isaac Morrill, 52 years a Wilmington clergyman

by Capt. Larz Neilson

There is much to be said about the Rev. Isaac Morrill, he who granted freedom to his female slave, Dinah, in 1777.

He became the clergyman of Wilmington the day of his 23rd birthday, May 20, 1741. He served over 52 years in the Wilmington church, dying on August 17, 1793. His tomb is marked by the red brick chimney like near the Middlesex Avenue sidewalk, in Wilmington.

The Rev. Mr. Morrill served as a chaplain for about six months during 1758, in what is now New York state, at Lake George and Lake Champlain, during a war which was fought mainly by French Colonials and British Colonials. Lieutenant Samuel Thompson of Woburn kept a diary of events in that war, and recorded over half a dozen times how he attended services by Mr. Morrill, and the subject of the sermons.

Thompson left home on May 24, 1758 and returned on the 6th of November. Among things he recorded was the death of 20 soldiers who were killed by Indians. The first on the list is that of Capt. Ebenezer Jones of (Andover Street) Wilmington. From this listing there has been a belief at times that 20 Wilmington men were killed. Only Jones was from Wilmington.

The meeting house in which the people of Wilmington met to vote freedom for the slaves was near the old cemetery, westerly of the present Middlesex Avenue. There was no Middlesex Avenue at that time. What is today the northerly driveway to the church was the "Main Road."

Construction of that meeting house was completed in 1765. There was no steeple. The building was 58 feet long, and 36 feet wide. The main entrance was on the side nearest the road. There were glass windows, with large (for that time) panes of glass. The interior was painted in 1766, and the building was taken down in 1813.

EXPERIENCE TABLES COUNT

QUESTION: How does an insurance company arrive at a premium figure for property insurance?

ANSWER: The secret ingredient lies in great numbers. It's hard to predict whether a particular home will go up in flames (unless you're an arsonist), or whether a certain car will be in an accident. But after years of experience, insurance firms can calculate how many homes per thousand are likely to burn and how many cars per thousand are likely to be in an accident. Experience tables also indicate which categories of customers are the best or worst risks allowing rates to be tailored accordingly.

EXPERIENCE TABLES help predict losses and set insurance premiums.

Did you know that you can step back in time and grab a piece of Dutch gingerbread along the way in a city called Curacao, capital of the Netherlands Antilles, where the Victorian era lives on in the 17th century houses of historic Willemstad? Have you ever heard of Virgin Gorda, one of the British Virgin Islands, where a cascade of huge boulders called "The Baths" forms a maze of caves and salt water pools? An odyssey for students needs volunteersby Dr. Christine McGrath
Superintendent of Tewksbury Schools

Thursday, October 21, a group of parents, teachers and administrators attended a presentation by Mrs. Barbara Mann, state director of the Odyssey of the Mind Program. This program is an enrichment program intended to supplement the daily school program. Odyssey of the Mind was founded by Sam Micklus, a professor at Rowan College.

The program is based on challenging students to solve various problems. Students work in teams of five to seven under the direction of a volunteer coach to solve their problem. The problems are both interesting and complicated, and drawn from five different areas of critical thinking. Students present the solution to their problem in a regional competition where teams, who have selected the same problem, compete against one another.

The five problems for the 1993-94 school year have many unique features and offer the participants many challenges. The first problem requires the construction of three mini terrain vehicles. The team must design, build and run the vehicles around an eight station course overcoming various obstacles. The second program is in the area of music. Here the students must construct three instruments which can play music when operated by mechanical devices. These devices must be created by the team.

A third problem requires the team to write a script based on themes from the Iliad; a Greek Tragedy as seen through the eyes of the children. The team must act out a scene from their personal perspective and then create a scene from the 20th century which has a theme similar to that depicted in the Iliad. The fourth problem involves the construction of a balsa wood structure. This structure must be balanced to support considerable weight. Finally the fifth problem really taps the creative "juices" of the team. The problem is called "Furs, Fins and Feathers." Here the team must devise a humorous performance about an animal and include those feelings that the animal might experience. This problem taps the creativity and the sensitivity of the team members.

The recognition ceremony, hosted by the UMass Lowell College of Engineering and the Franciscan Children's Hospital of Boston, is part of "Pediatric Rehabilitation Awareness Week," proclaimed by Governor William Weld as October 18 through October 22. UMass Lowell and the Hospital are sponsoring an exhibit of recent projects in Doric Hall at the State House throughout the week.

The exhibit and awards ceremony are hosted by Rep. Kevin Honan of Brighton and Sen. Michael Barrett of Cambridge. Both events are being coordinated by the Legislative Service Bureau of the State House.

The UMass, Lowell, second largest of the five campuses in the University system, currently enrolls 13,000 undergraduate and graduate students in six colleges: Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Fine Arts, Health Professions and Management.

Odyssey of the Mind stretches the thinking skills of all children. The program is open to children of varying abilities and learning styles. The cooperative learning format makes this concept a success oriented experience for all children. No child will be excluded from this program provided we can secure the services of a sufficient number of coaches.

Training for those individuals who are interested in serving as coaches will be held at Northern Middlesex Regional High School Saturday, Nov. 6 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Interested parents and citizens should contact their building principal for an application. Anyone who needs additional information about this program should contact Mr. James McGuire, assistant principal, John W. Wynn Middle School 851-3709 Kevin McArdle, principal, Heath Brook School 851-9112 or Christine McGrath, superintendent 851-7347.

Odyssey of the Mind provides an opportunity for the Tewksbury Public Schools to tap the creative talents of their children. We urge all parents to consider participating in this exceptional program. I would like to thank the leadership of all Parent Advisory Councils and the building principals for supporting this initiative.

Here comes Maggie's

by Bill Conlon

The former Pike House earned a new lease on life on Tuesday night, when selectmen granted a liquor license to a new restaurant and pub. "Maggie McKeever's" Irish pub and restaurant is expected to open by the end of November, according to Wilmington restaurateur Rocco DiPasquale, now that the liquor license has been approved.

The name, he said, is the maiden name of his mother-in-law.

Rocco's daughter, Regina, will manage Maggie McKeever's, after telling selectmen she has 18 years of alcohol service experience, most of it through her father's restaurant on Main Street in Wilmington.

The building itself has a colorful history. Formerly the residence of Town Clerk Alice Pike, and later a repository for town records, the facility ran for years as a restaurant known as the Pike House, then changed to Bob White's and most recently as Bianco's. At one point, a car lot was proposed for the property, and the developer was willing to move the Pike House to a corner of the lot and deed the structure itself to the town. That plan failed to win approval from the appeals board, and the facility has been vacant since Bianco's closed.

Regina DiPasquale said seafood will be a specialty on the menu, as Irish dining centers on seafood and lobster, and she said the pub will feature stouts and other dark beers popular in the Emerald Isle. Hours for liquor sales were granted as 11 a.m. until closing time at 1 a.m.

The liquor license was granted upon the stipulations that a police records check is approved, and that a minor change to the floor plan is made to show an additional area as "dining room" space. A unanimous vote by the selectmen granted the license.

The sign on the front now states "Watch out for Maggie!" and now that promise will be fulfilled.

Campfire visits
Krochmal Farm

Camp Fire Boys and Girls and their leaders took advantage of a beautiful Indian summer evening to enjoy a hayride at Krochmal Farms in Tewksbury. Thirty-nine members from Tewksbury, Wilmington and Billerica piled into the back of a wagon for a ride through the fields and woods to a campsite complete with a rip-roaring fire. Marshmallows were toasted, s'mores were made and supervised pillow fights on a fallen log were the entertainment for the evening.

The darkness of the return ride was lightened by loud singing from the wagon. A great time was had by all who attended.

Edwin Barnes honored

Tewksbury resident Edwin Barnes of Marion Drive, was one of a group of UMass, Lowell electrical engineering graduates, faculty and staff recognized at a State House ceremony on Tuesday, October 19.

Those honored were involved in developing one of a kind devices, produced as part of an independent design project students opted to conduct in their junior or senior year, that help disabled children interact with the world around them. Barnes was honored for his invention of a remote controlled stereo system for a blind adolescent.

Boston Globe
College Workshop

The Boston Globe will sponsor a workshop on college education for parents and youth on Thursday evening, Nov. 4 from 7 to 9:30 at Tewksbury Memorial High School, 320 Pleasant St., Tewksbury. Admission and parking will be free.

The Boston Globe College Workshop, presented by the Higher Education Information Center, is designed for parents of college bound youth and youngsters thinking about college. The Globe and the Higher Education Information Center are now in their fourth year of presenting this workshop. The workshop has two sessions on separate aspects of college:

1. Choosing a College: what factors to consider in picking schools (size, location, career interests, campus environment, costs, curriculum, school reputation) and how admissions decisions are made (importance of test scores, grades and extracurricular activities).

2. Paying for College: ideas on different ways to meet the costs of a college education: various sources of financial aid, how eligibility for aid is determined, the steps to apply, and alternative ways to pay.

The workshop is presented as a public service by the Boston Globe and the Higher Education Information Center, a comprehensive clearinghouse of information on higher education, financial aid and careers. The center, located in Boston, has secured local college admissions and financial aid officers to be presenters as part of the program.

Presenters for the program include Leah Kendall, director of admissions of the Franklin Institute of Boston; Jane Brown, dean of admissions and career service at Emerson College; Edwin Middleton, director of financial aid and dean of admissions at Bradford College; and Keith Conant, associate director of financial aid at Babson College.

Attendees will be able to ask questions of the experts and will receive information packets about the two subjects. Refreshments will be served between the sessions.

No tickets or reservations are required to attend. If you have questions, call the Globe's Public Relations Department at 617-929-3017.

Gregory Merriman camping at Mt. Katahdin

Gregory J. Merriman, a first year student at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, began his college experience with a four day camping and mountain climbing trip on Maine's highest peak - Mt. Katahdin in Baxter State Park. Merriman shared the Colby Outdoor Orientation Trip (COOT) at the beginning of September with about 10 other incoming students plus two returning upperclass students.

Merriman, the son of James and Therese Merriman of Wilmington, was one of 460 new Colby students, more than 95 percent of the incoming class, participating in the COOT Program. Other COOT trips this year included a service project with The Nature Conservancy, housebuilding with Habitat for Humanity, hiking and mountain climbing in Acadia National Park and the Appalachian Mountains, a theater retreat, bicycle trips and canoeing on Maine's lakes and rivers.

Gregory Merriman

In addition to introducing students to public service and the outdoor recreation opportunities that Maine offers, the COOT excursions provide a relaxed atmosphere where students can get their bearings before beginning the serious academic work required at Colby - a highly selective college that ranked 15th among 600 liberal arts colleges in a recent U.S. News and World Report survey. "It's a great way to make friends and to find out about life at Colby in an informal setting," one trip leader said.

"Students who participate report feeling more comfortable adjusting to college life," said trip coordinator Ben Jorgensen, Colby's assistant director of student activities.

Colby's Class of 1997 hails from 35 states and 21 different countries as near as Canada and as far as Botswana and Japan. This year, 460 first year students and 20 transfers were selected from an applicant pool of 3,024. Colby, the 12th oldest independent liberal arts college in the U.S. celebrates its 181st anniversary this year.

Virginia Doucette exhibits art at Shawmut Bank

Virginia R. Doucette, award winning artist and lifelong resident of Wilmington, has been selected to display some of her artwork at the Shawmut Bank in Wilmington Plaza. Mrs. Doucette of Palmer Way, has most recently been studying at the studios of famed artist Carolyn D. Latanision.

"My experience under Carolyn's tutelage for the past four years has helped me define my objectives in the watercolor medium," said Mrs. Doucette. The exhibition of six of her watercolors will continue at Shawmut Bank through November 24.

Mrs. Doucette is a Wilmington High School graduate and a member of the Reading Art Association and the Mashpee Arts Council. Her artwork has been shown at several art shows, exhibitions, and commercial establishments throughout the area including Reading, Woburn and Cape Cod. She remarked that: "It is particularly enjoyable to have a representation of my work displayed in my home town." Her next competitively critiqued exhibition, sponsored by the North Suburban Art Association will be held at the Boston Technology Building (formerly the American Mutual building) in Wakefield on November 6 and 7 in which she will enter a single watercolor for judgment. The public is invited to attend.

Constance Flavell Pratt

Courtroom artist to present demonstration

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will sponsor a demonstration/lecture by a well known tv and courtroom artist, Constance Flavell Pratt on Wednesday evening, Nov. 10 beginning at seven. She is a familiar figure to those who watch courtroom proceedings on television and view these proceedings in the news media. An artist of many diversifications, Ms. Flavell relieves her busy calendar of portrait commissions by doing courtroom illustrations for the news media, including the Boston newspaper as well as WCVB-TV, ABC, CBS, and CNN national television networks.

Her lecture and demonstration deals with the problems encountered when an artist must sketch quickly, incisively and from a vantage point quite unchosen by himself. The demonstration includes a display of many examples of courtroom illustrations. She usually ends her lecture by sketching a group from the audience.

Constance Flavell Pratt is a member of the Pastel Society of America, the Guild of Boston Artists and the Copley Society. She is a graduate of the Mass. College of Art in Boston. Her pastel portraits, well represented in Boston College School of Law, Mass. Institute of Technology and Harvard University have won awards from the Salmagundi Club, Hudson Valley Art Association, and the Academic Artists Association and many others.

This lecture has proven to be extremely popular with both artist and non-artist listeners. All are welcome and there is no charge. It will be held at the Arts Center on Route 62, Middlesex Avenue (across from the Congregational Church).

Wilmington Garden Club Silver Tea

The Wilmington Garden Club would like to extend its appreciation to Woodbriar of Wilmington for its generous hospitality on the occasion of our recent Silver Tea. There were over 100 guests present to enjoy the program by Bill Graham of Salem.

Mr. Graham designed many interesting arrangements which were then awarded by a ticket drawing. Guests of honor present were the Northern District Director Mrs. Pat Gagnon of Danvers and presidents of local Garden Clubs. The club members donated many hand made items for the successful boutique table. Trays of refreshments were circulated by members of the Silver Tea Committee, chaired by Celia Cornish, to accompany the tea served in fine china from a silver service.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be held at the Marine Corps League Hdqs Thursday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. The program will include a harvest swag workshop presented by Ruth Zarack, owner of the Vinery in North Reading. She excels in unique crafts and painted furniture. Her crafts have been featured on the cover of Country Sampler Magazine. Members are reminded to sign up with the program chairman for this workshop.

The Garden Club welcomes new members who are residents of Wilmington. For information call Membership Chairman, Olive at 657-7340.

Wilmington High PAC meets Nov. 15

The Wilmington High School Parent Advisory Council has begun its year with two very informative meetings. At the September meeting the officers for 1993-94 were introduced: President, Andrew Armata; Vice President, Ellen Heigham, Secretary, Peggy Kane; Treasurer Linda Whitebone. Guest speaker for the evening was Dr. Geraldine O'Donnell.

Dr. O'Donnell shared the latest information on educational reform and how the new regulations apply to the various parent organizations. She distributed a timely informational packet and answered numerous questions.

Principal Paul Fleming presented his vision for the newly required School Council. That evening the PAC voted the parent representatives: Andrew Armata, John DeMarco, Maria Holland, Suzi Rooney and Barbara Ward.

The format for the November 18 Open House was discussed and standing committees were formed to organize the year's major activities.

The October 18 meeting featured a presentation by English teacher Matthew Joyce which demonstrated his pilot program which trains teachers and students to create an environment that fosters listening and speaking skills. He is presently working with Ms. Bertini and a health class, Mr. Olson's social science class, Ms. Bavuso and her foreign language class and Ms. Symonds' grade nine English class.

Mr. Joyce also made an offer that could not be refused by those present. The PAC will be sponsoring a second evening of the AP class annual student production in April. All proceeds from this evening will go toward the PAC Scholarship Fund.

All parents of Wilmington High School students are encouraged to attend upcoming meetings. On November 15, Mrs. Florence Athanasia will speak to the new SAT format, as well as update parents of each grade level on what is happening in guidance for their child. The December 6 evening will be an informal social gathering. All meetings include refreshments, laughter, information and the sharing of ideas.

Team effort spells tourney

In the second half of last Friday's state soccer tournament-clinching win over Notre Dame Academy of Tyngsboro, Wilmington High School all-star junior halfback Jaime Forgett carried the ball over midfield and looked to her right.

On the wing, poised three-in-a-row, in staggered, fighter formation, were Adrienne Fay, Nancy Pote and Renée Vachon. Pote took the pass and scored, but more than that, the play illustrated the depth and balance of this year's edition of coach Sue Hendee's WHS girls' varsity soccer team.

There was Fay, the senior tri-captain, two-time All-Conference selection and field general from her center halfback's position, known simply as "A"; Pote, an all-star for the second consecutive year and now all-conference junior halfback and backup goalkeeper; and Vachon, as a sophomore an emerging star with sometimes dazzling offensive skills at forward. One could further envision Class of '97 speedster Melissa Palermo using her quickness to join the play.

Four graduating classes, five talented young women, one tournament-bound team. That team is represented by five seniors, seven juniors, four sophomores and three freshmen - 19 in all, a lot of talent, very few, if any, weak spots.

Hendee is fair, but tough as the guiding influence of the group. With the depth her team has, it is easy for her to pull a player she feels isn't hustling or playing with the intensity she demands. Often, she will take a player out to offer constructive criticism, a technique she is able to employ without compromising the competency of her unit on the field.

In addition to Fay, two-time all-stars Jill Murphy and Jenn Murray captain the squad as seniors from their forward and fullback positions, respectively. Laura DeMarco and Lynette Spiano round out the Class of '94.

Pote and Forgett are accompanied by classmates Mary Armata, the all-conference goalkeeper who wears her determination on her uniform in the form of mud; Kerri Casella, the team's four-foot-eight and one quarter inch fireplug who doesn't let her asthma condition slow down her indomitable field play; second time all-star fullback Jacqui Hayden; halfback Denise Langone, a scoring threat; and steady defender Kelly Silva.

The sophomores have two future, if not current, stars in Vachon and stopper-fullback Nicole Dussault, whose strong kicks already make her a force either from her own goal or midfield. In fact, Dussault was recently selected as an all-star in just her second season. Karen DeFrancesco and Joan DeMarco, Laura's younger sister, help make for a promising future for Wildcats women's soccer.

The young trio of Palermo, Nicole Ciaramaglia and Jill Lojek already log playing time under Hendee as freshmen and should expect to see plenty more in the years to come, which should be very good years for Wilmington High School girls' soccer.

But the future for now consists of the State High School Soccer Tournament, which the young women qualified for after successive home shutouts against Notre Dame of Tyngsboro and Dracut. The Cats just missed in their bid for a second place - and best-ever - MVC finish, as they closed out the regular season with a 0-0 tie at Andover and a tough 2-1 loss at Lowell. Forgett played particularly well in scoring Willy's lone goal. Hendee had to "settle" for a 7-3-3 record, a second straight tournament appearance and third place in the Division I laden conference.

This will be the third tournament appearance for Wilmington in girls' soccer in the seven years the town has fielded a varsity team in that sport. Hendee has been the coach for six of those seven years, leading the Wildcats to the tournament in 1988, her first season. That year and last season, the Cats bowed out in the first round, but Hendee and her team are looking for the third time to be the charm.

"I think we're a stronger team this year," the coach says, but "a lot of it depends on the draw. I hope we get a first round home game." The Wildcats lost, 3-2, in overtime to Georgetown High School in a game played at Wilmington High School last fall.

Along the lines of good-luck charms, look for Fay to "tease" the blond locks of Casella and "pump Pote's cleats" before the start of each tournament game. Both rituals got their start this season and although Casella's hair looks virtually the same after Fay is finished and Nancy Pote's cleats are not equipped with air pumps, one cannot argue with the results - a 7-3-3 record and a second straight tournament appearance.

"I'm really excited. We have a good chance of doing really well," the effervescent Casella said. Her excitement and hope is mutual among the team.

"I hope we win," Langone, who severely sprained her ankle at summer soccer camp and has played all season wearing an air cast, stated simply.

Some, like DeFrancesco, who recently sprained and pulled ligaments in her right knee, simply hope to play. "I better be ready [to play in the tournament]," the sophomore forward said.

With hope, however, comes the inevitable case of nerves, perhaps least expected in Armata, the seemingly fearless goalkeeper who in just her second season has risen to all-conference heights.

"I was extremely nervous [last year]," she said, confidently adding she'll be only "a little less nervous" this year when she dons the keeper's jersey and takes her position between the posts.

But while Armata and 15 of her teammates not graduating should have another crack at the tourney next year, for coach Hendee's four seniors, every game could now be their last.

"All I want to do is win the first game," says Fay, which would be an unprecedented feat for Wilmington girls' soccer.

Four year veteran Laura DeMarco, who has her sights set on Williams College after graduation this spring, says she will "miss the team and hanging' around with them, the bus rides..."

But the season ain't over yet, and senior Jill Murphy is looking to extend it as long as possible.

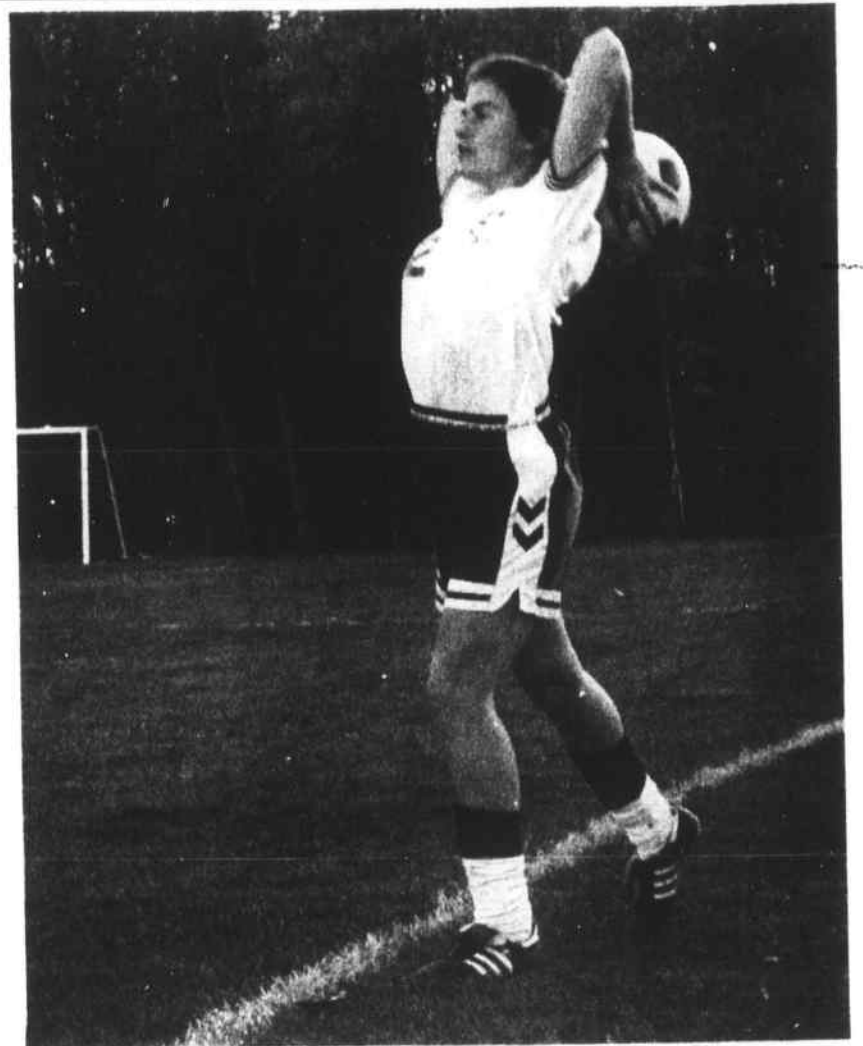

"I think if we play together as a team and work together, we can do really well."

Wildcats fall just short

by James Pote

Two yards is what separated the Wilmington High School varsity football team from registering their first win of the year (0-7) in another tough Saturday defeat.

With a few minutes remaining, and Andover having a comfortable seven point lead, even though they were outplayed throughout the game, the Wildcats chances of a big play looked dim. They have been searching for it all year to get into the win column.

The Warriors had the ball at their own 24 yard line with Paul Tisbert (who had two field goals) punting on fourth down and seven. However, as he received the bad snap which forced his left leg to hit the ground, the referee awarded the ball to the Wildcats at Andover's 11 yard line which looked like the big break they have been looking for.

However, once again they couldn't overcome adversity, as the Warriors defense stopped WHS on the two yard line to force the ball back over.

"I thought our momentum would carry us in, but unfortunately that didn't happen," said the frustrated head coach Gerry Sullivan.

Even though the scoreboard read 13-6, the Wildcats definitely outplayed Andover and deserved a win, but mental mistakes again hurt.

"I think I counted up around 115 yards lost in penalties for us, that is way too much and that was a big reason why the scoreboard read the way it did," continued Sullivan.

In the first quarter, Wilmington had the ball all but two plays, and one play devastated the home team as Dana McCann scored on an 85 yard run with Tisbert's extra point to take the early lead.

However, after that play the Wildcat defense played superbly, with seniors Dave Fleming and Dave Maglio leading the way. Andover could manage only Tisbert's two field goals after McCann's run.

Down by 10 points at the half, the Wildcats came out of the lockerroom looking like the Miami Dolphins instead of our own Patriots. Junior Steve O'Neil and senior Brian Burke once again led the offensive attack as they combined for 251 of the 280 total yards, with O'Neill scoring the only Wildcat touchdown.

The Wildcats' drive, which started on their own 39 yard line, was led by O'Neill's four runs for 36 yards, which included a 31 yard footrace.

"We outplayed them, most especially in the second half, but we continue to beat ourselves and hopefully, that won't happen against Dracut," explained Sullivan.

Easter Seal Shoot Out

Eighteen thousand Mass. youngsters have received invitations from Celtics star Dee Brown to participate in the 1993 Easter Seal/Boston Celtics Basketball Shoot-Out. Local schools and youth organizations have also been invited to participate.

"Kids like to shoot baskets," said Shoot-Out Chairman Dee Brown. "We're giving them a chance to help people with disabilities, and have fun at the same time."

Youngsters participating in the Shoot-Out get pledges from family and friends for each basket shot during a three minute period. A parent, teacher or coach signs off on the number of baskets completed. The shooter collects his or her pledges and sends the money off to Easter Seals to fund services for people with disabilities.

Last year nearly 4,000 youngsters raised $135,000 in Basketball Shoot-Outs all over Mass. The top 100 fund raisers joined Kevin McHale and Dee Brown in the Boston Garden for a special basketball clinic.

This year, 100 winners will attend the clinic in Boston Garden on April 1, 1994. Basketball Shoot-Out sponsors are T.J. Maxx, Business Equipment depot, WLVI TV56 and WWLP-TV22.

For more information, call David Lamacchia at 1-800-922-8290.

WHS girls bow out

by James Pote
Tuesday afternoon the Wilmington High School field hockey team entered the State Tournament against a highly-touted Ipswich team and battled gamely before bowing out.

The Wildcats started off with a bang, with sophomore midfielder Leanne Harris leading a great charge and nailing the post in what would be Wilmington's greatest chance to score in the 1-0 loss at Ipswich.

"Their (Ipswich) offense was very aggressive, but the kids played great, they really hung in there", said the energetic head coach Jan Urquhart.

Junior Kerri Anderson played exceptionally well in goal, stopping 13 of the 15 shots, which included a spectacular save on a penalty shot.

"Kerri played outstanding, she has been all year," continued Urquhart. After trailing 1-0 at halftime, Wilmington was hoping to find a way to cut the one goal deficit.

However, Wilmington was not able to accomplish that, but they had many girls who put in valiant efforts.

Senior Lisa Dipetri, playing in her last game, played a superb game at forward. Also hustling were juniors Laurie Southmayd, Kathleen Rooney and sophomore Leanne Harris.

With only three seniors graduating from this year's team, the Wildcats should be in this position for year's to come.

"We are a very young team and hopefully, we'll be back here next year with the outcome going our way," offered Urquhart.

• Cats (from page 13)

Saturday with running back Scott Camarada leading the way. If the Wildcats can continue their offensive attack, cut down on their penalties, contain Camarada and throw a few blocks here and there, look for the locals to walk off with that first win Saturday.

Soccer girls enjoy a great season

The North Andover Columbus Day Tournament featured girls and boys teams throughout the state, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

Wilmington's GU-12 Division I soccer team matched up against North Andover in its first contest with a 4-0 victory. Offense was first priority minutes into the match, as Sarah Lund pushed the ball into net after a cross pass from halfback Karen Hardy.

It was all Wildcat offense throughout the game highlighted by midfielders Lauren McCarthy, Lindsay Bruno, Karen Hardy and Jennifer Koczen that kept the Crusaders from penetrating.

Lindsay Bruno scored before halftime with a hustling effort after stealing the ball from a Crusader defender. Lisa Dellascio put the game out of reach with goals three and four.

Wilmington played game two vs. Division I Saugus on Sunday morning and easily defeated the Essex County team by a score of 5-1. Excellent defense by sweeper Amy Axelrod, fullbacks Christina DeSimone and Jennifer McNabb halted the Spirits attack.

The girls again scored early to carry the momentum from the first game and led at halftime, 3-1.

Michelle McGonagle, Lauren McCarthy and Lisa Dellascio scored for Wilmington. Great support by Valerie Cwiekowski, Katie Beaudin, Molly Pidgeon and Jennifer Koczen kept the Wildcat offense on the move.

The two victories placed the U-12 squad in a tie with the Nashoba Valley entree Boxford "Branches" who had easily won by 5-0 and 4-0 scores. Wildcat soccer had to be at its best if the girls were to advance to the semifinals Monday. A determined team got on the board first when Lisa Dellascio lofted a ball to Sarah Lund for Wilmington's first score two minutes into the game.

It wasn't long before the Banches struck back, as their striker got one past goal keeper Alicia Paquin. The U-12 girls fought back and attacked the Boxford defense to be one up at halftime on a great kick to the net by Kerri Axelrod that was deflected off the goalie. Michelle McGonagle tapped in the loose ball.

It was a quiet halftime to enable coaches Bob Paquin and Joan Axelrod to instruct the team's second half attack. All of the players raised their level of play to provide an offensive spark.

Midway in the second half, as both teams kept penetrating, Michelle McGonagle got a breakaway pass from Jaclyn Ingram to beat the keeper, and scored the final goal on another great pass from Karen Hardy for a final score of 4-1.

With their third victory, Wilmington would now play Salem in the semifinals. This was a tough contest all the way, as each team throughout the game had chances to score. Lisa Dellascio scored the only goal of this thrilling match at 1:20 into the game. Great defense from sweeper Amy Axelrod and Alicia Paquin in goal saved many Salem scoring chances. Midfielder Liz Dorrance was a key factor, with gritty effort and strong play assisted by Jaclyn Ingram, Lauren McCarthy and Lindsay Bruno.

In its final match of the tournament against Beverly, Wilmington played a solid soccer match but fell short, losing by a score of 3-1. Although down 2-0 at halftime, the U-12 squad fought back and scored on a goal by Lisa Dellascio. Great play by Valerie Cwiekowski, Kerri Axelrod, Christien Ross, Katie Beaudin and Liz Dorrance.

This group of 18 girls entered two tournaments this fall, including their Middlesex League matches, ending the season with 12 wins, three losses and two ties. The defense played superbly by allowing 19 goals, with the offense scoring 47 in its 17 contests.

Bow hunting season is upon us

by Bill Conlon

The annual Massachusetts archery season for deer opened on Monday, and runs to November 20. The Bay State offers oodles of deer and lots of hunting opportunities, although most hunters can't wait to leave the Commonwealth.

It's without doubt there are deer in Massachusetts, good ones, with an estimated 60,000 in the current herd. Towns all across the state are barring the discharge of firearms, so archery is the only way to chase many of these deer. Tewksbury and Wilmington, for example, are bowhunting-only now.

Bowhunting for deer is a funny game. While most of the basic rules of hunting deer with a firearm still apply, such as reading sign and the ability to be quiet, there are others.

A hunting bow is accurate only to about 40 yards. Yeah, yeah, here it comes: "I can thread a needle at 100 yards with my bow, ya loser!" Still, 40 yards is the norm for most of us. Beyond that distance I'm guessing, and that just isn't fair to the deer. My favorite distance is 20 yards, or 20 good paces since deer don't have tape measures attached. I've got my sights set at 10, 20 and 30 yards on my bow, but that plenty for me.

One of my favorite little games is to practice measuring distances at every opportunity. In fact, I made a pretty accurate guess last week in New England Medical Center while visiting my ailing wife. I told an ICU nurse that a certain wall was just over 20 yards away, and it took 21.5 paces to reach it.

Next is the equipment. A bow that has a 40 pound draw weight at 28 inch draw length is the minimum in Massachusetts, and my Bear White-tail II is set closer to 70 pounds at my gangly 32-inch draw. The only requirement beyond the minimums is accuracy, accuracy, accuracy, as in practice, practice, practice. You can go crazy picking out the right bow and add-on toys. Good luck. A used bow is fine, to save some $.

Arrows are best selected upon the advice of a pro. Picking the proper weight and stiffness of arrows for your particular bow requires charts and chicken entrails, so find a pro.

The state sets minimum and maximum widths for broadhead blades, so your discretion is limited in the size of your arrowheads. Still, you can find a staggering variety of top-notch broadheads that meet the size limits of 7/8" minimum and 1.5" maximum widths. I use tri-bladed Wasp Cam-Locks. They make these lovely cuts in my foam target, and I expect they'll make lovely gouges in a venison heart one of these days.

Camouflage is the normal clothing for bowhunters, but there's no real reason. Deer are colorblind. Still, since you may have to go stalking, cammies help you blend in. Also, it doesn't hurt to be dressed in subtle colors when the neighbors look out and see you walking into the woods. Blaze orange terrifies 'em.

Now, on to the game itself.

Bowhunting is a game of ambush more than pursuit. You've got to find the right spot, along a trail or bedding area, that will allow you a clear shot when the time comes. If you think you can creep up on an unsuspecting buck, thin again. An ambush is the only game in town.

Many deer archers use tree stands and portable seats, to place them up above the scent stream and over the underbrush, and many carry a saw to cut "shooting lances" clear of any twigs along likely approaches. A good tree stand costs around $100, plus climbing aids and safety belts. I've never tried a tree stand, since I haven't yet settled on the perfect hunting location. Every trip is still a scouting expedition for me.

Bowhunters also use deer scents and calls more than shotguns. A balky buck might be lured in with a quick grunt or clack of antlers, and those final few yards can be crucial to success. Pace off 20 yards and it will look like kissing distance.

Hunting arrows, sadly, don't kill as cleanly as a slug. The slamming trauma of bullet impact is missing, so an archer relies more upon the massive bleeding caused by razor-sharp broadhead blades to do the job. One drawback of bowhunting is the need to follow a blood trail through the underbrush to find a down deer. Arrow-hit deer almost never fall where they're hit. One of the most useful tricks is to sit for a spell after a successful hit, to wait for the deer to get lightheaded and lie down, hopefully for keeps. They can run long distances if their stress level is high, so relax and wait!

One big plus of bowhunting is the automatic "antlerless permit" that a bowhunting stamp provides. There is no need for a bowhunter to "put antlers" on the first deer, but you'll need to put antlers on the second, if you go back out the next day.

Massachusetts might someday be a bowhunting-only state, if the anti-gunners have their way. You might be wise to learn the game now.

--- Tackle Box ---

I've signed for a week's vacation next week, to take advantage of the bow season for deer, like it matters. I'll be doing day trips in the local area, and probably half-days at that because my poor wife is still in the garage. Still, I've got about a dozen places to hunt in a five mile radius of my house, but do me a favor and don't ask where.

Christine O'Brien of Wilmington

Art for Tuition

By KEN MAGUIRE

If Christine O'Brien could paint herself into one of her creations, the picture would likely depict her as a smiling, animated college student sitting at a desk in a classroom of a good art school.

Smiling because she is a friendly young woman, animated because cartoon characters are currently her favorite work subjects, and an art student because that is what she hopes to become sometime soon.

Christine is gaining exposure by painting the picture windows of the Woburn Showcase Cinema, where she is presently working on characters from an animated Christmas film released recently. Anyone stuck in traffic on Rte. 128 over the last year or so has probably seen her work. It's usually big, colorful and hard to miss.

With any luck, she will turn her talent into a successful career, if it's not already. At age 21, this Wilmington High School graduate is living on her own in Medford and paying her own way, in addition to saving money for art school tuition.

"As far as what specific area I want to go into, I don't know, but being able to take classes would help in that decision," O'Brien said from atop her ladder inside the theater.

Her wish list of art schools narrows down to Massachusetts College of Art and the Boston Museum School, which is an extension of Tufts University. She said the Boston Museum School probably ranks first because it gives credit for "life experience," which O'Brien is compiling by painting the windows.

However, there are some things which Christine cannot teach herself, such as computer graphics, which she would like to learn more about in a classroom setting.

"The computer graphics are really big now and I don't know how to use a computer at all," she said. "It's something I'd like to try."

O'Brien has loved art since her early days in Wilmington, right up through two years at the University of Rhode Island. She left there two years ago to move back home. At URI, she took classes in pottery, sculpture, and clay, among others.

Christine might have been in her senior year at URI this year had it not been for budget cuts.

"They made a lot of cuts," she said. "They took a lot away from the art department. It wasn't worth paying the out-of-state tuition so I decided to leave."

Comparing her classes to her window work, the animation characters win out.

"So far, I enjoy painting probably the most," she said. "I've liked just about everything I've tried so far, but I haven't had a chance to try some things I'd like to."

The main obstacle standing between Christine and her school hopes is, not surprisingly, money. For starters, she moved from her parents' Wilmington home, first to Brighton and since September, Medford. In doing so, she hopes to become eligible for financial aid, which is always a soothing phrase to the ears college and would-be college students.

As another financial supple-

CHRISTINE O'BRIEN is putting her paintbrush to work in hopes of affording tuition to an art school. The Wilmington native currently paints movie characters on the picture windows of a local cinema. (Don Young photo)

What's in a name? "Plenty!" and don't let anyone kid you (Shakespeare not withstanding). Folks, you would be surprised to know the real names of many of your favorite actors and actresses are tongue twisters to say the least. It is why Hollywood movie producers change the names of many potential movie stars. When I was born my parents were undecided on a name for me. When my father took a second look at me, he said to my mother, "Oh, let's call it quits" and they did, after nine more.

I remember when I received my draft notice in World War II. I read the 'greetings' and ignored them. Two weeks later, six of us marched down to the induction center - myself, four MPs and my mother-in-law who had turned me in for the bounty. The army psychiatrist whispered in my ear, "Do you like bathing beauties?" "I don't know, Doc," I replied, "I've never given one a bath." "You're crazy!" he shouted. I demanded a second opinion and he shouted even louder, "Okay, you're ugly too!" "Well, Doc," I exclaimed, "you don't look like Errol Flynn yourself. You look more like Bela Lugosi."

Angelo Quaganti said, "Old fishermen never die - they just smell that way." Russ Rebidue is the father of twin boys. He named one Pete and the other RePete... There's a world of difference between a politician and a statesman. The politician thinks in terms of the present with a "What's in it for me" attitude. The statesman thinks of the future generations and votes that way... Holding public elective office can be very frustrating at times. It is like dancing on a crowded dance-hall floor. No matter how careful one

Therapy support groups for children with problems

New England Memorial Hospital will offer a number of therapy support groups starting in November and December to help children deal with a wide range of personal, family and school adjustment problems.

Support for children ages 6-12 of addicted parents is provided by Kids C.A.R.E. (Children of Addictions Resource and Education). The group provides a forum for peer support that helps children identify and accept their feelings about their parent's addiction.

To participate, children must have the permission of both parents to speak openly in the group, and in addition, the parent(s) must be actively involved in or have completed a recovery program.

New Families is a group for children ages 3-12 whose parents are going through separation or divorce. Groups explore the many issues that are often a part of being a separated family, such as parents' fighting, being "caught in the middle," and celebration of holidays and birthdays. After completion of the first program, a second program is available for children that covers issues related to parents' new relationships, remarriage, and new siblings.

A Children's Self-Esteem Group helps children ages 4-12 form positive relationships with others and improve communication and coping skills. Children experiencing low self-esteem often feel dissatisfied or feel that they cannot make themselves understood. They may have poor relationships with parents, siblings or peers. Sessions strive to help children gain self-confidence and develop a sense of self-worth.

An Adoption Group, for adopted children ages 6-12, allows these youngsters to meet other children from similar situations to share their feelings, fears, and wishes about adoption. Whether adopted at birth, as an older child, through divorce or foster care, the adopted child deals with different questions and issues at each developmental stage.

A Grief Recovery Group for children ages 6-12 who have lost a sibling, parent or significant caregiver provides a caring atmosphere where children can share their feelings, fears, concerns, and memories with other children. Group goals include the development of coping skills to help children adjust to their loss.

Special Friends is a group for children ages 6-12 who live with a chronic illness or disability. The group provides a safe environment in which to explore issues of trust and control and

Wendy Frank sings at NEMH concert to benefit Early Intervention Program

Early Intervention benefit concert

A children's concert featuring Wendy Frank will be held at 1 p.m. on Sunday, November 7 at the Greater Boston Academy, located on the grounds of New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH). Tickets, available at the door, are $5 per child (adults are free) with a maximum price of $15 per family. Proceeds will benefit the NEMH Early Intervention Program.

Wendy Frank, of human-Nature, uses songs, guitar, puppets and group participation to create a vibrant and playful performance. Her environmental awareness and self-esteem themes encourage children to think positively about themselves and their world.

She has performed throughout New England appearing at The Boston Children's Museum, The Decordova Museum, The Museum of Our National Heritage, The Cape Museum of Fine Arts, The Three Apple Storytelling Festival, preschools, elementary schools, churches, synagogues and festivals.

The NEMH Early Intervention Program has sites in Stoneham and Wilmington. It serves children in Stoneham, Melrose, Wakefield, Wilmington, Reading and North Reading.

Cesarean birth class for Moms at Melrose-Wakefield

Recovery after a Cesarean birth is different from a vaginal birth. Many moms often have questions about the birth and recovery. They are also concerned about subsequent births.

After a Cesarean birth, it is important to remember that the old rule, "Once a Cesarean, always a Cesarean," is no longer true for many women. It is never too soon to be thinking about the delivery of the next child and the option to have a vaginal birth after Cesarean (VBAC).

The VBAC Awareness Group, offered by Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, and conducted by certified childbirth instructors, will answer questions and help mothers learn more about VBAC options for their next child.

The group will meet on Monday, November 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Nurses Conference Room (3rd floor) at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, in Melrose. Registration is required. For information about the VBAC Awareness Group, or any other MWH childbirth education program, please call (617) 979-3408 or (617) 979-3515.

Hip Homelessness Program

STONEHAM'S HERBECK IS HIP - The Community Service Network, Inc. - a small private, non-profit agency directed by Sheila Herbeck - has been selected for the Homelessness Intercept Program, a network of community-based service organizations serving 27 regions across the state.

Based in Stoneham, the Community Service Network serves Bedford, Burlington, Lexington, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn. Herbeck is looking to provide the same types of services to Everett, Malden and Medford.

HIP's goal is to get and keep families out of motels and hotels, and to eliminate those as temporary family shelters, according to State Senator Robert A. Havern. The program is designed to serve low and moderate income clients by giving them the knowledge, skills and service necessary for their independence.

The purpose of the afternoon is to help all those with a burning desire to support Reading's upcoming 350th Anniversary Celebration to do just that. In addition to dancing in two rooms, dessert, coffee and conversation will be readily available as will a full complement of 350th mugs, hats, T's, sweat-shirts, and Bob McCaffrey art work.

Tickets are $5 in advance and may be purchased at the Hot Spot, Le Metro Cafe, the Kaleidoscope of Krafts, and

Are Your Trees Stressed?

This summer's drought and heat have left most tree species stressed. Drought symptoms may not be evident until a year or two later. To minimize the effects, you should fertilize your trees this fall.

Fall is an excellent time to feed trees. Why? Tree roots keep growing all year, and any fertilizer not used this fall will still be available in the spring.

Art for Tuition

hangs in the living room of her parents' home.

"One painting I'm really proud of is from a photograph that I took of an old fashioned schooner-type sailboat off in the distance over a cliff," Christine said. "It really came out well. I took the picture on a family vacation."

When she eventually gets her portfolio together, Christine says she would like to concentrate her freelance efforts in the Medford and Somerville area, to make her commutes to and from work that much shorter.

But for now, she is happy where she is. Exposure is plentiful with huge picture windows with which to play. O'Brien said the more window painting she does, the easier it gets, although not too easy.

"It's completely different than painting on anything else,"

Christine explained. "Everything is backward on glass. You do the details first and the background afterward. Any lettering has to be done in reverse. You're painting inside so people can see outside."

"The toughest part is getting the perspective right," she continued. "But the size makes the details easier."

All the hard work is paying off. Theater Manager John

Grande said customers always comment on how nice the paintings look. "They say how wonderful it is," he said. "It's been going over very well. It's really been a positive thing all around."

Of the all characters she paints, Christine favors the happy-faced ones, which is right in line with her personality. In fact, she laughs when recalling how kids sometimes scratch their names into her work.

"While I was painting one day a little girl came up and was about to scratch something," she said. "I said 'Hey, what are you doing!' When they scratch in their names I just paint over it. But they don't realize that someone has spent a lot of time to make it look nice."

Christine's family has been by to see the work, not that they would miss if they have ever driven on Rte. 128. She says her talent is in her family genes, but she hasn't figured out exactly where from yet.

"More people are musically talented in my family than visually artistic," she said.

But Christine admits that she does not have a monopoly on the arts in her family. Her brother recently graduated from Shawsheen Tech, concentrating in graphic arts.

Youths display art at Wilmington Health Center

Given a box of crayons, colored markers, a blank piece of paper and a large imagination -- it's incredible what children can create. Their drawings tell a unique story. It speaks to the viewer of how a child interprets their world and the events and circumstances in their life.

Through art, students from second grade classes in the towns of Wilmington, Andover, North Reading, Reading, Tewksbury and Wilmington were recently invited to tell their own stories about their experiences with healthcare.

What do seven year olds feel when they visit their doctors' office? What do they think about the people who work in the healthcare industry? What does being healthy mean to them? These answers are surprisingly vivid in these children's drawings - all of which will be displayed at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center's 2nd annual Health Calendar Art Show from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Monday, November 8th at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington. Art work from each

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

TWKSBUURY EDITORIAL TELLS IT LIKE IT LOOKS - "Nasty politics burns TMHS' hockey coach" is the headline of today's 'editorial of the week' - possibly this week's 'editorial of the year' - by Rick Cooke, the editor and sports editor of the Wilmington and Tewksbury Town Crier.

First, the line-up, play-by-play (see the annotated cast of characters directly below): "Christine McGrath wanted to talk about the weather; Kevin Anderson wanted to talk about a series of school committee events five years ago that were strangely similar; Mickey Sullivan wanted to talk to Bob McCabe about hockey for the first time in 13 years; and Ed Doherty wanted to talk to absolutely anyone who would listen to his side of this story that stinks to high heaven," notes Cooke, at the beginning of a much longer piece on the subject. "You know, that special smell of Tewksbury politics whenever it weasels its slimy way into the town's schoolboy sports."

Now, the cast: McGrath is the Tewksbury Superintendent of Schools; Ciampa is former hockey coach; Anderson is a Tewksbury School Committee member; Sullivan is the athletic director; McCabe was, and is the Tewksbury hockey coach. Doherty is an athletic supporter - hockey coach and hockey scout - as well as a Tewksbury School Committee member.

Question: Cooke is cookin' - and reading between the line-ups. But is there something everyone else isn't saying?

READING HIGH TEACHER RESIGNS - The Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle" reports that the School Department has accepted the resignation of Steve Rhodes, a Reading math teacher of 28 years and longtime softball coach.

MELROSE PLAYS MUSICAL PEOPLE - All the comings and goings among Melrose school personnel have resulted in several shifts in teaching and administrative positions, mostly in the middle and high schools.

The record number of turnovers has translated into Timothy Hurley's transfer from high school assistant principal to guidance department head while former guidance department head Pat Kodzis has become the middle school principal because of Anthony LaRosa's sudden retirement last month.

Peter Garipay, assistant middle school principal, is filling Hurley's shoes at the high school and Tom Brow, social studies curriculum coordinator and teacher, has taken over Garipay's duties for about two out of five teaching periods each day.

According to interim superintendent Richard Incerto, the above positions are interim positions, for this school year only, at each person's current salary.

High school principal Claude Croston and assistant principal James Frontero as well as middle school assistant principal William Nagle are still in place - as a citywide administrative reorganization task force studies other school systems and alternatives.

The following administrators have announced that they will retire within the next three years: Nagle, Croston, Frontero, Lincoln School principal Robert Fancy, and Roosevelt School principal Joe Bateman. Horace Mann principal Kathleen Buckley left Melrose to become Winchester's assistant superintendent, and Superintendent of Schools Dr. David Driscoll is now the state deputy commissioner of education.

WOBURN AVERAGE CLASS AVERAGES 20 - The average class size at Woburn High is 20, according to Woburn Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum Dr. Louise Nolan.

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

"Acclaimed by his peers as a songwriter's songwriter" (Sing Out Magazine), Franke's songs have been recorded by many artists, including Sally Rogers, Claudia Schmidt, Garnet Rogers and John McCutcheon. He himself has recorded six albums including the powerful and lyrical, "In This Night." This is Bob Franke's most entertaining and enjoyable album. He is well-known for deeply insightful lyrics and his ability to give voice and music to feelings for which other people have no words. He is also a riveting and delightful performer. He can take audiences from tears to laughter as those who have been to his shows in the past will tell folks.

Opening for Bob Franke at 8 p.m. will be several unannounced surprise guests at the Linden Tree's famous "Sampler Set." Local residents who wish to attend the concert are encouraged to call 246-2836 to reserve seats and come when the doors open at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $7. The Linden Tree Coffeehouse is located at the Unitarian-Universalist Church, 326 Main St., Wakefield.

Bob Franke

"Masters of the Banjo" national tour in Lowell

Making an appearance at the Smith Baker Center in Lowell on November 7 will be the Masters of the Banjo national tour.

Beginning at 3 p.m., Masters of the Banjo brings together seven celebrated master players and offers a rich sampling of the myriad ways to playing this much-loved American instrument with African roots.

The combining of the African banjo and European fiddle produced the first truly American popular music in the 19th century, and the popularity of the instrument has continued down to this day.

This tour explores the African roots of the instrument, the styles that developed from these roots, and the forms that continue to evolve today.

Featured are bluegrass legend Ralph Stanley; master of the ancient Ethiopian krar Seleshe Damessae; All-Ireland tenor banjo champion Seamus Egan; the elegant old-time two-finger style of Will Keys; the melodic or "fiddle" style of Carroll Best; the driving clawhammer playing of Kirk Sutphin, and original banjo compositions of Tony Ellis.

These banjoists will be accompanied by the Ain't Bad Backup Band: Laurie Lewis, fiddle, guitar and vocals; Dudley Connell, guitar and vocals; and Jimmy Trivette, bass and vocals.

Tickets for this Lowell Folk Festival fundraiser are $12 and are available at the National Park Visitor Center Bookstore, 245 Market Street, and the Boot Museum Bookstore, 400 Foot of John Street, Lowell.

"Old and Rare Books" lecture

Kenneth Gloss, proprietor of the nationally-known Brattle Book Shop in Boston, will speak at a free and open lecture at 1:30 p.m., Friday, November 5, at the First Baptist Church, 45 Woburn Street, Reading.

Mr. Gloss' talk is entitled, Treasures in Your Attic: Old and Rare Books. "New England homes are treasure troves for old and rare books that have increased in value over the years," says Gloss, "and we're inviting those attending to bring any volumes they want to know about to the lecture for a free verbal appraisal."

The Brattle Book Shop is the successor to America's oldest continuously operating antiquarian book store. Kenneth Gloss succeeded his late father, George Gloss, a well-known figure both in Boston and in national antiquarian circles.

Kenneth Gloss had worked in the store since childhood and elected to go into the book business rather than pursue a doctorate in chemistry. He became the sole proprietor upon his father's death several years ago. "I found that books were in my blood and that I would never be really happy if I abandoned the business."

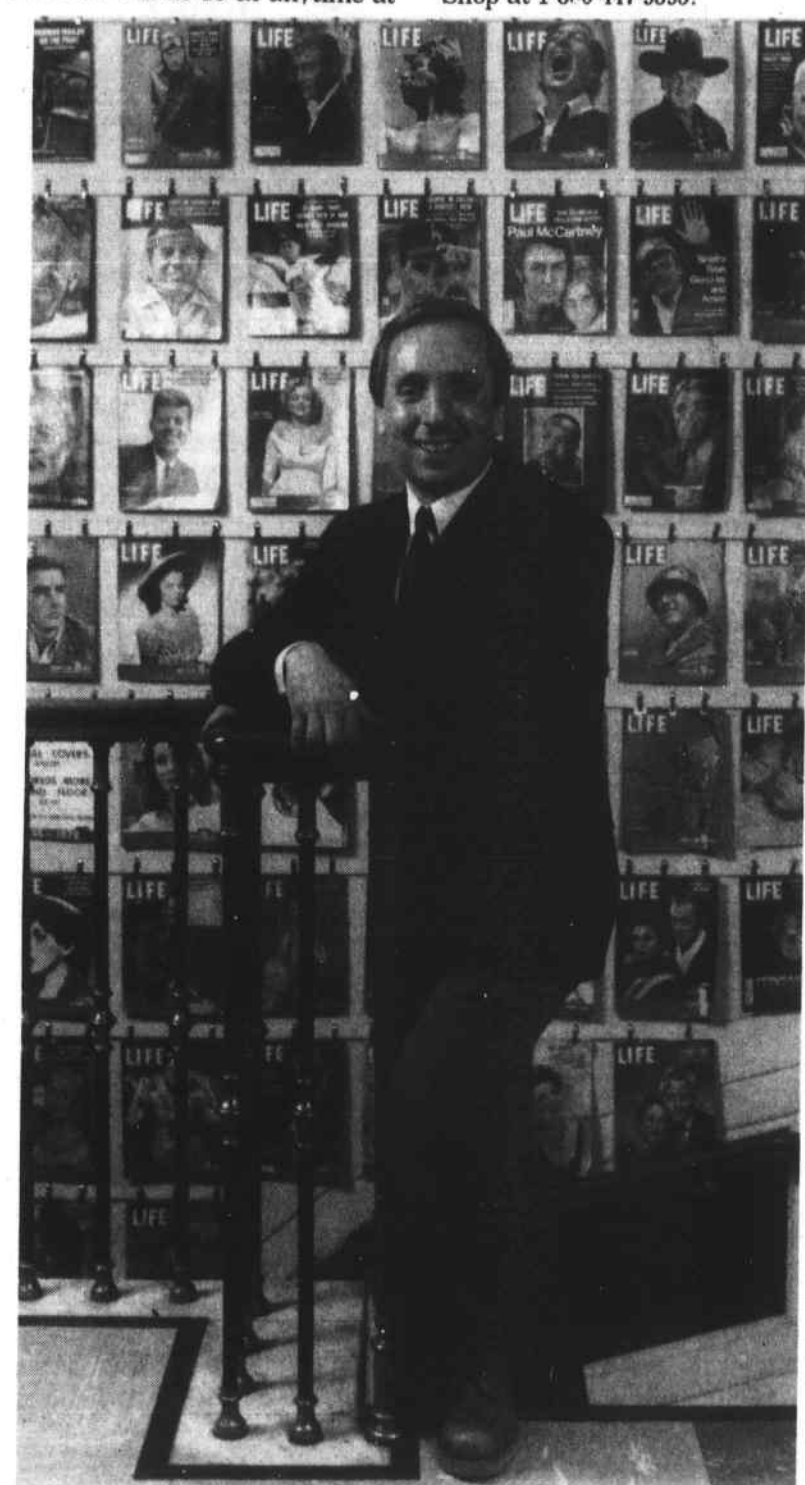

Kenneth Gloss is a member of the Antiquarian Booksellers Association of America, the New England Antiquarian Book-sellers Association.

Gloss will bring to the lecture several examples of interesting books, magazines and ephemera from the store's private collection, such as a 1912 World Series scorecard and examples of old LIFE Magazines. (He owns the complete set!)

Following the lecture and question-and-answer session Gloss will give free verbal appraisals of those books and items that people bring with them or will do so at anytime at his 9 West Street emporium in Boston.

For further information, please call the Brattle Book Shop at 1-800-447-9595.

Kenneth Gloss will be in Reading November 5 at 1:30

Art Exhibit and Sale in Wakefield

The 1993 North Suburban Art Exhibit and Sale will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, November 5, 6 and 7 at the Boston Technology Building on Lake Quannapowitt in Wakefield (Exit 39 from Route 128).

This is the 32nd year for the show which promises to be bigger than ever with over 200 entries.

There are six top prizes to be awarded along with the "Popular Vote" which is determined by ballots cast at the show and announced on Sunday evening.

Three top judges: Elisabeth Clark of Manchester, William E. Beyer of North Quincy and Anne Demeter Krapish of Danvers, were selected by an independent committee from the Reading Art Association.

Every effort is made to ensure that the decision of the judges is completely objective and neutral.

There will be a reception on Friday evening at which time the winners will be announced. Refreshments will be served and the public is welcome.

An exhibition of student work from Reading and Wakefield schools will once again be coordinated by Joy Schilling. Each year this part of the show consistently offers a panorama of emerging future artists.

Andrew Kusmin of Westford has graciously donated one of his original watercolors for the raffle. His painting "Brush! Brush! Brush!" won one of the top prizes last year at the show. The Frame Shack of Wakefield in addition to being a sponsor for the show will once again donate a $100 gift certificate.

D & D Crafts Grand Opening in Wakefield November 6-7

Dick and Linda Deegan announce the grand opening of D & D Crafts at 253 North Ave., Wakefield on Saturday, November 6 and Sunday, November 7. D & D Crafts is a gift shop featuring educational arts and crafts for children, custom woodcarving and American crafts.

Dick Deegan has enjoyed woodcarving as a hobby since 1982 when he moved to North Reading. He had several trees cut down in his overgrown yard and thought, "What can I do with these logs?" His favorite objects are large carvings roughed out with a chainsaw such as totem poles, a 12-foot dragon, a 9-foot sea captain, tikis and mountain men.

In the past year Dick has completed a 9-foot cowboy and 4-foot rattlesnake for the Border Cafe in Saugus, a 4-foot fisherman for Ocean's Beat Bar & Grill in Beverly, and 4-foot angels for Small Planet Bar & Grill in Boston. He is a member of New England Woodcarvers which meets every other month in Bedford to share carving expertise and knowledge.

Linda Deegan, a former school counselor, is aiming to offer the largest selection of educational arts and crafts kits in the area. Nearly 200 kits which encourage the expression of creativity and imagination in children are currently in stock. D & D Crafts features Creativity for Kids, Curiosity Kits, Waddle We Doo and Woodkrafter Kits.

Anyone with interest in woodcarving or handcrafts is invited to the grand opening of D & D Crafts on Saturday, November 6 and Sunday, November 7. The shop will be awarding free gift certificates -- stop by for a chance to win.

Road to Recovery program seeks volunteer drivers

How close is a cure for cancer? For some people it may be just a 10-minute ride. The American Cancer Society offers Road to Recovery, a volunteer based program, that drives patients to and from their radiation and chemotherapy treatments. Anyone who has a car the old gentleman, "I thought you said the water was lukewarm?" "Wal," he replied smiling, "it look-a-warm to me."

The psychiatrist told Don Harris of Woburn, "You must give up smoking." "Why?" Don asked, "Is it bad for me?" "Who the heck cares?" the head shrinker replied, "You're burning a hole in my couch!"... Circus Ad - "Wanted, man to be shot out of a cannon. Must be able to travel." George Varney of Winchester applied but didn't get the job. He was a man of the wrong caliber!... Any man who brags that he never made a mistake generally has a wife who did.

Hampshire, "Sir, how far is it to the nearest gas station?" "Wal," the old timer replied, "I reckon it's about one half mile - as the crow flies." "How far is it," Wayne was anxious to know, "for a fellow with a bad back wheeling a flat tire?"

My old maid cousin, Ruth Fidler, told me she just had a burglar alarm installed in her house. "Gee!" I exclaimed, "After all these years, I sure hope you catch one!"... A handsome intern said to a pretty nurse, "Marry me, you're too beautiful for wards."... A young man was infatuated with a beautiful nurse. He tried to see her one night during non-visiting hours but was intercepted in the hospital corridor by a head nurse. "What are you doing here?" she inquired. "I have an urgent message for Nurse Kelly. She's my sister." The head nurse grasped the young man's hand and shaking it vigorously exclaimed, "Oh! I'm pleased to meet you 'son.' I'm Nurse Kelly's mother!"

When I was in my early teens my dear mother was determined that I was to become another Jascha Heifetz (the great violin virtuoso). So, I would 'lug' my violin to Mr. Ferragamo's Music Studio every Saturday afternoon for a half-hour lesson. One day after almost a year of involuntary study, Mr. Ferragamo told my mother, "W.C. Fields said 'If at first you don't succeed, try, try again, then quit. There's no sense being a darn fool about it.'" My violin teacher added, "After almost a year of practice, Chipper doesn't even hold the bow right. I suggest you save your money and help me save my sanity."

On one of the rare recent warm days, I asked an old timer standing near the water's edge at Revere Beach near Kelly's "How's the water today?" "Lukewarm," he replied. So I ran into the surf and dove under the first incoming wave and nearly froze stiff. I ran out of the water shaking and shivering and stopped long enough to ask

"Fatal Instinct"

"Fatal Instinct" Starring Sean Young, Armand Assante, Kate Nelligan, Sherilyn Fenn, Christopher McDonald, James Remar. Directed by Carl Reiner. Screenplay by David O'Malley. Rated PG-13.

Sean Young, gliding sexily across the screen in a body-molding dress and stacked heels, steps on a wad of gum and picks up a trail of trash. She continues to smolder as she tries to hit on cop Armand Assante, but of course, the effect is more funny than sexy because all we can see is the trash.

It's a clever bit. Same can be said for the title, which is a cross between "Fatal Attraction" and "Basic Instinct," though director Carl Reiner manages to parody more than these two over-the-top thrillers. He samples from "Double Indemnity," "Cape Fear," "Sleeping with the Enemy," "Body Double," and even "The Mambo Kings."

Assante plays Ned Ravine, a lawyer by day and a cop by night. He defends the criminals he catches. Racine's adoring secretary is played by Sherilyn Fenn, who has flashbacks to an evil husband a la "Sleeping with the Enemy." She is dutiful, gorgeous and ultra competent. Of course, Racine never notices her.

Racine does occasionally notice his wife, but is not home enough to wise up to her blatant affair with grease monkey Christopher McDonald, or their plan to do him in for his triple-indemnity insurance.

Though gal Nelligan, sounding husky and strong much like Barbara Stanwick, is just one example of the fine performances in this film. Swathed in those silly, silky at-home numbers of the forties, Nelligan is unwavering in her decision to murder her hubby. She baldly fakes love to her men, while plotting all the way to the bank.

Young is also quite funny in her femme fatale role, but we are never sure why she is there. Not much of a reason is given for her to approach Racine. She has no real problem, no "case" to consult with him. She just quickly dissolves into the nutcase played by Glenn Close in "Fatal Attraction," and it feels like a quick out.

That Reiner took too many shortcuts with this flick is it's problem, the reason it can't sustain itself. Reiner tends to beat the jokes to death or shove them down our throats, whereas the funniest moments are quick cuts and asides. It almost feels as if the director didn't trust his audience to pick up on the humor unless he lingered over it.

Still, "Fatal Instinct" is a more adept comedy than those wham bam action movies such as "Loaded Weapon 1," of which there have been too many of late. Assante is funnier than you'd have thought as the straight arrow law man who just can't understand women. And Reiner uses a lot of clever visuals, such as film noir costumes and sight gag from movies that practically parodied themselves in the original.

But because Reiner used such a heavy directorial hand, this clever movie just can't maintain the momentum with which it begins.

The Nightmare Before Christmas offers audiences a uniquely creative twist on sickly sweet holiday classics as seen through the eyes of producer Tim Burton, who created the characters and the story. His vision is imaginative and unusual and deserves to be seen, but lacks the content to be a feature film. At 65 minutes, it is a little more than a mini-movie. Rated PG. ***

The Beverly Hillbillies resurrects the Clampetts, those Ozark hayseeds, and gives them new life under the direction of Penelope (Wayne's World) Spheeris. Much like watching an elongated, if better made, version of the TV pilot, this offers nothing new but is an amusing nostalgia trip. Jim Varney's Jed Clampett is imbued with an integrity and earthy wisdom and Lily Tomlin is all gawky mannerisms as funny, over-the-top Jane Hathaway. Rated PG.  1/2

The Joy Luck Club is a first-rate adaptation of Amy Tan's novel. The story of four Chinese women and their relationships with their immigrant mothers is tough and honest and amazingly perceptive. Maternal relationships are at the film's core, but it also explores the struggles of adjusting to a new country while your children leave behind old ways. The result is a richly textured emotional landscape that will stay with you long after the film has ended. Rated R. ****

Mr. Jones stars Richard Gere as a charismatic, but none-too-believable manic depressive who becomes romantically involved with his psychiatrist, Lena Olin. Her Swedish accent is as uneven as the cliché-riddled script, which takes a legitimate disease and turns it into little more than a personality tic. Rated R. **

Age of Innocence is a magnificently rich film, both esthetically and emotionally. Martin Scorsese directed this adaptation of Edith Wharton's novel about the killer elite of New York society around the turn of the century. Daniel Day Lewis is the husband who finds his young wife, Winona Ryder, to be a pale imitation of a woman after meeting her cousin, played with infinite depth by Michelle Pfeiffer. This is a cinematic delight in every possible sense. Rated PG. ****

Demolition Man is a futuristic sci-fi action flick told with so much campy humor you can turn a blind eye to the weak plot. Sylvester Stallone is a renegade cop taken out of a cryogenic freezer to capture escaped psychopath Wesley Snipes. There is little logic here, but special effects and tongue-in-cheek chuckles make it worth watching. Rated R. ***

Malice stars Nicole Kidman, as the wife of average professor Bill Pullman, who finds her life falling apart when they take in sexy boarder Alec Baldwin, a top-notch surgeon with a housing problem. All flash and sexy titillation, this thriller will reel you in if you don't think about it too much. Rated R. ***

A Bronx Tale is a 1960's period piece in which a young boy is torn between the boring decency of his bus driver father (Robert DeNiro) and the flashy attraction of the local mafia chieftan (Chazz Palminteri). This is a first rate effort from director De Niro, who threads this detailed coming-of-age story through a neighborhood rich with characters and rife with atmosphere. Rated R. ****

The Good Son stars Macaulay Culkin as an angelic-looking little boy who is actually a snarling monster, though only cousin Elijah Wood knows for sure. Of course, Wood can't get anyone to believe him. The plot suffers from a lack of subtlety and therefore from a lack of tension, as Culkin's evil nature is never allowed to gain any momentum. Though the boys do wonders with their roles, the script would have been better suited to a television production. Interesting to note that the majority of the film was shot on Cape Ann. Rated R. 1/2

The Fugitive is THE movie to see this year. It's an engrossing, edge-of-your-seat, heart-pumper of a flick with some of the best action and chase scenes ever captured on film. Harrison Ford plays a celebrated surgeon arrested for the brutal murder of his wife (Sela Ford). After a daring escape, he spends most of the movie trying to elude a U.S. Marshall (Tommy Lee Jones) who is every bit as clever and tenacious as Ford. Great fun. Rated PG-13. ****

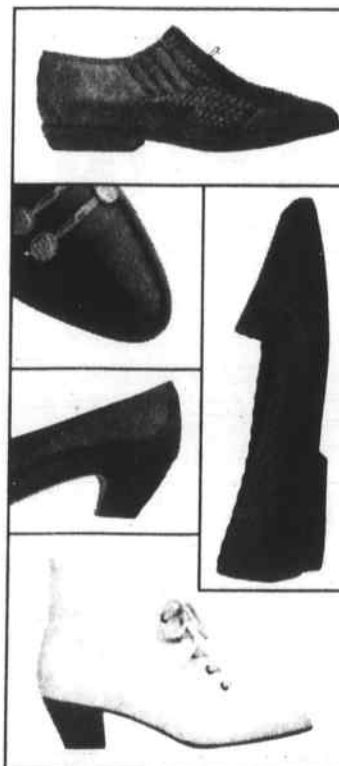

Jurassic Park is the ultimate movie in every sense of the word. Resurrected dinosaurs both enchant and terrify the first visitors to a newly developed theme park. It doesn't matter that the dinos are the only stars here and the people are barely fleshed out, because the special effects will keep you on the edge of your seat. But director Steven Spielberg eradicated the cynicism of Michael Crichton's book, so the fun tends to be more visual than emotional. And it's too violent for children under the age of 10. Rated PG-13. 1/2
